Abstract

A faculty member I knew in graduate school said that a PhD degree is like a hunting license: you can’t look for certain kinds of jobs without it, but it also doesn’t guarantee a successful job hunt. If you are working on a PhD or you are thinking about starting a PhD degree, there are things you should know about career options. There are also things you can do during graduate school that impact your career options. In addition, the talk will discuss early stage career goals for junior faculty.
